Pantomime (/ ˈ p æ n t ɔː m ə m /; informally panto) is a type of musical comedy stage production designed for family entertainment. It was developed in England and is performed throughout the United Kingdom, Ireland and (to a lesser extent) in other English-speaking countries, especially during the Christmas and New Year season. British literature is literature from the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Isle of Man, and Channel Islands. This article covers British literature in the English language. Charles Dickens, in full Charles John Huffam Dickens, (born February 7, 1812, Portsmouth, Hampshire, England—died June 9, 1870, Gad's Hill, near Chatham, Kent), English novelist, generally considered the greatest of the Victorian era. Aristotle identified the ancient Greek writer Hegemon of Thasos, who lived around 400 BC, as the father of parody. Hegemon was the first to take well-known poems of his day and alter the wordings slightly so that the sublime became ridiculous.
